Arafat dies at 75; new Palestinian leaders tapped

PAGE 6

Tobias named Pac-10 Coach of the Year on eve of NCAA soccer tourney

PAGE 11

Weird News ...... 2 Datebook ...... 2 Opinions ..... 4 Sports ......11 Comies ......20

ARIZONA DAILY WILDCAT

Mike Bibby's UA jersey retired | Res. Life

SAUL LOEB/Art

Ex-UA player and current Sacramento King Mike Bibby examines a framed version of his jersey during a ceremony to retire his jersey after the Wildcats' 165-80 win over Sonoma State at McKale Center. Bibby played at the UA from 1996-1998 and helped lead the Wildcats to a national championship in 1997.

By Roman Veytsman ARIZONA DAILY WILDOXT

There may have been a basketball game last night at McKale Center, but for the first time in a long while, the UA men's basketball team was not the Mike Bibby, who spent two seasons at the UA and led the Wildcats to the national championship in 1997, was in attendance to have his No. 10 jersey retired, joining former UA greats Steve Kerr and Sean Elliott as the only Wildcats to earn such an honor.

"Winner," "team player" and "all-around good guy" were just some of the terms thrown around by Arizona players, coaches and UA administrators about Bibby last night.

"I'm proud of Mike not just as an athlete; I'm proud of what kind of young man he is," UA head coach Lute Olson said. "You can see that he's still the same type of young man that he was when he was here."

After the Wildcats defeated Sonoma State 105-80, Bibby came onto the court with members of his family, including his mother Virginia, his girlfriend Darcy and his young son Michael, to see his famous No. 10 hung from the south wall of McKale

"Mike had a mother who couldn't be a greater person for raising a young man as she did," Olson said.

Bibby posed for pictures and watched a three-minute highlight tape while standing alongside Olson. When the video was done, Olson took the microphone and praised Bibby for representing the UA.

"I don't believe there can be a more unselfish player than Mike Bibby," Olson said. "We're so proud of what you did here, and we continue to be

See BIBBY/8

leaders converge on campus

By Jesse Lewis ARIZONA DAILY WILDCAT

Students from schools in Canada and the western states began a conference at UA yesterday to learn how to be better leaders.

The Intermountain Affiliate of College and University Residence Halls conference began yesterday, and 350 students from 26 schools will be on campus until Sunday participating in workshops with UA residence lifers.

The annual conference rotates between schools in the region, and UA IACURH members won their bid to host the conference this year.

The UA's IACURH chapter has spent $67,000 to put together the leadership conference, and organizers say the planning has gone smoothly and they are excited for their hard work to pay off, said Tera Monroe, conference adviser and assistant director of Residence Life.

"Everything has been pretty smooth, and we have been fast and fiercely planning this conference," Monroe said.

The conference was paid in part by the delegates' $167 registration fee and $8,000 allocated by the Residence Hall Association, Monroe said.

Students from schools in Canada, New Mexico State, University of Colorado Boulder, University of Utah, Colorado Mountain College, and the University of Wyoming will be at the conference participating in workshops on topics such as personal development, leadership development and global and campus issues, Daila Temple, entertainment chair for the conference, said the planning committee has a lot of entertainment planned for the delegates.

Five drag queens from the UA's annual Diva La Paz will be performing in Diva IACURH at the Inn Suites Hotel, where the delegates will be staying.

The UA's Swing Cats will perform and give swing dancing lessons to attendees. There will also be a

See RES LIFE/8

Engineering groups join forces for fair

By Georgeanne Barrett ARIZONA DAILY WILDCAT

Two campus engineering clubs will join forces tomorrow to host their first formal career fair to meet representatives from the engineering and technology industry.

The Evening with the Industry, hosted by the Society of Women Engineers and the National Society of Black Engineers, will give students the opportunity to sit down and talk with representatives from companies they might be interested in working for.

See ENGINEERING/8

Club aims to increase UA organ donation

By Jennifer Amsler ARIZONA DAILY WILDCAT

A new club wants students to serve the community after they die.

The UA Students for Organ Donation, which will begin official meetings and activities next semester, will aim to educate and register students to donate their organs, as well as debunk common misconceptions about organ donation.

We can save lives. Our main goal is to get the pool of donors increased on campus," said Amina Shonka, the president and founder of the UAOD.

Shonka, a psychology senior, said she hopes the club will be on the UA Mall every other week to talk to students and creatively show them how much the community is in need of donors.

She said almost 100 people in Arizona ages 18 to 34 are on the waiting list for an organ transplant.

"These people are young and haven't lived their life. We need to reach out to them," Shonka said. During an introductory meeting last week, Brandon Koolick, a member of UAOD, said people sometimes hesitate to register to be an organ donor because they do not know enough about the issue.

More than 87,000 people in the United States are waiting for transplants, yet only 20,000 to 25,000 are given transplants each year, said Koolick, a general biology sophomore. In Arizona, more than 1,000 people are waiting for some kind

See DONATION/8

Undeclared soultomore Kira Morfrod, left, and physiology sophomore Dena Khoury fill out applications for executive board of the UA Students for Organ Donation club last week. TOMLIN