Biomedical classes in Phoenix may start in ‘06

By Lisa Rich
Arizona Daily Wildcat

Expansion plans to establish the U.A. College of Medicine and College of Pharmacy at Arizona State University’s Biomedical Campus in Phoenix are underway, with classes expected to start in fall 2006, said Phil Gordon, mayor of Phoenix and 1972 UA alum.

Despite plans to expand the campus to Phoenix, Gordon said the planning for the project was underway when the university announced its intentions.

The Arizona Board of Regents approved plans to expand the campus to Phoenix in August, according to the university’s website. In September, the university announced plans to build the new facility.

The UA and city of Phoenix are working to assess the campus’ infrastructure, facilities and recruitment needs, Gordon said.

The UA and city of Phoenix are working to assess the campus’ infrastructure, facilities and recruitment needs, Gordon said.

The 1971 annual U.S. Pearl Harbor Memorial Service, organized by the Pearl Harbor Association and the U.S. military, honored the 1,177 sailors and Marines who were killed on the USS Arizona during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Survivors, civilians gather to mark 51st anniversary of bombing

By Natasha Blayn
Arizona Daily Wildcat

Veterans and families of those killed in the attack were honored in a brief ceremony, attended by members of the Arizona National Guard and Arizona military veterans.

The service was part of a series of events planned by the Pearl Harbor Association to commemorate the 51st anniversary of the attack.

Tucsonans protest Andean free trade

About 100 people from various Tucson groups gathered on campus Friday evening in protest of the Andean Free Trade Agreement, which some say would hurt the region’s economy.

The marchers started at Old Main and ended at the Tucker Convention Center, where they met with representatives from the Tenneco Transportation Alliance.

The marchers were joined by students and faculty from the Tucson community who are opposed to the partnership.

Man arrested for sleeping in student’s bed

By Holly Wills
Arizona Daily Wildcat

An 18-year-old man was arrested for sleeping in a student’s bed. He is accused of breaking into the room and forcing the student to leave.

The incident occurred in a residence hall on the campus.